

Your end-to-end investigation & evidence management solution

Managing your evidence from intake to review and final report can be unnecessarily challenging – spending time entering the same data into different systems, using portable media to share evidence, waiting for physical deliveries of evidence, or dealing with workstations that crash from file downloads. Adding additional stress, law enforcement agencies are now seeing that external media is often not up to the task of long-term storage. These inefficiencies can result in needless delays, mishandled or lost evidence, an investigation moving on before the evidence is reviewed, or a declaration of mistrial.

As digital evidence sources per case continues to grow, running defensible, compliant and ethical investigations requires new best practices specific to digital evidence management.

Cellebrite Guardian solves these issues for your agency with one end-to-end solution.
